American taxpayers are quite interested in knowing how banks have used the money that Treasury has invested under the Capital Purchase Program (CPP). To answer that question, Treasury is seeking responses that describe generally how the CPP investment has affected the operation of your business. We understand that once received, the cash associated with TARP funding is indistinguishable from other cash sources, unless the funds were segregated, and therefore it may not be feasible to identify precisely how the CPP investment was deployed or how many CPP dollars were allocated to each use. Nevertheless, we ask you to provide as much information as you can about how you have used the capital Treasury has provided, and how your uses of that capital have changed over time. Treasury will be pairing this survey with a summary of certain balance sheet and other financial data from your institution's regulatory filings, so to the extent you find it helpful to do so, please feel free to refer to your institution's quarterly call reports to illustrate your answers. This is your opportunity to speak to the taxpayers in your own words, which will be posted on our website.

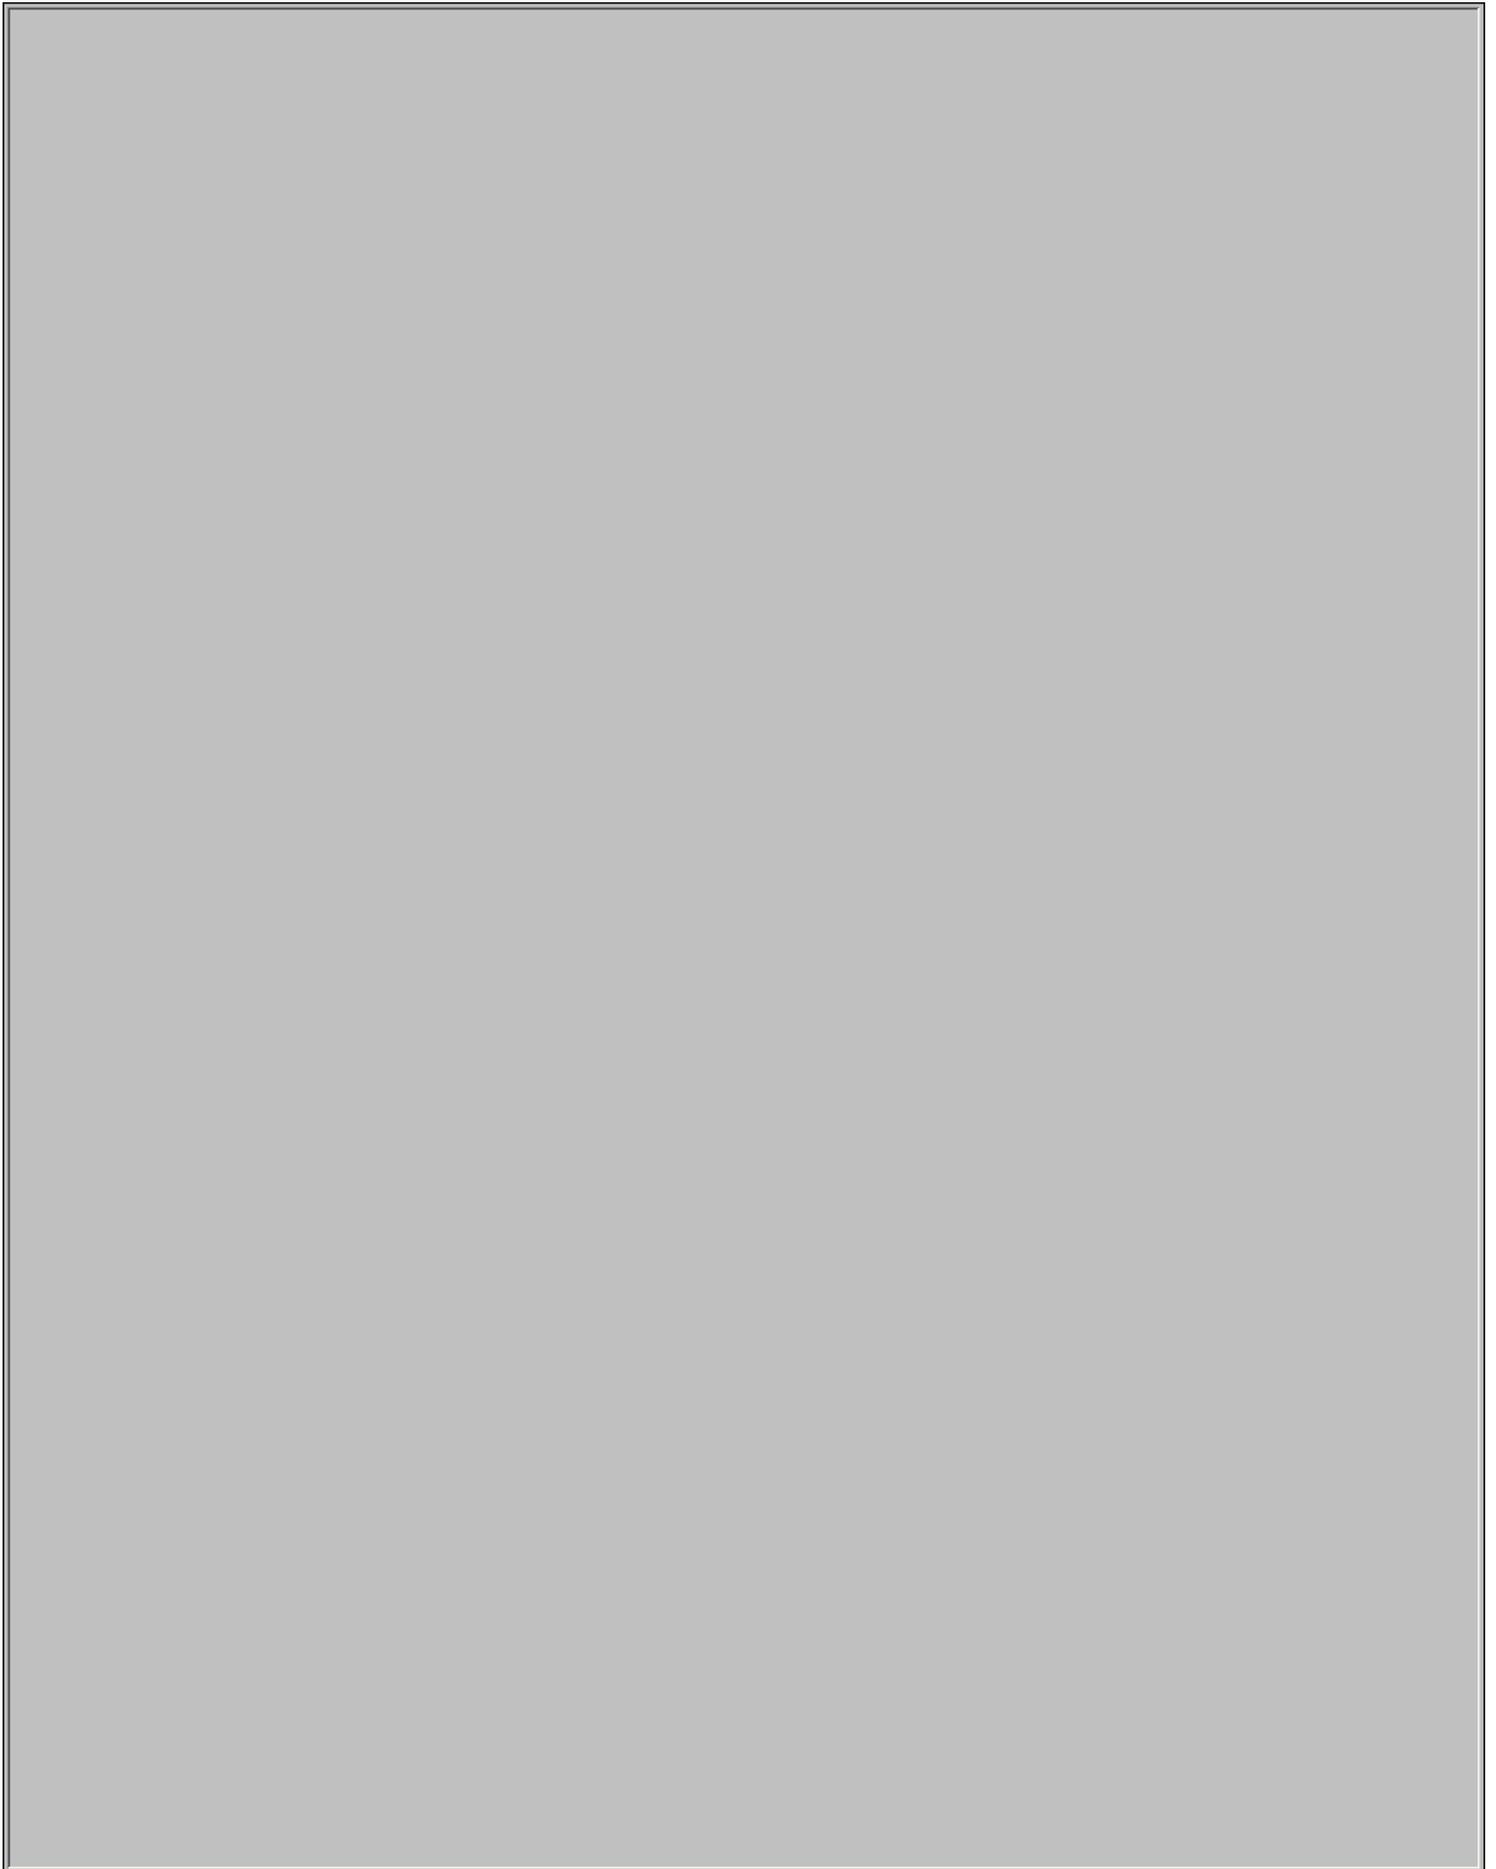

What specific ways did your institution utilize CPP capital? Check all that apply and elaborate as appropriate, especially if the uses have shifted over time. Your responses should reflect actions taken over the past year (or for the portion of the year in which CPP funds were outstanding).

<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> Increase lending or reduce lending less than otherwise would have occurred.	Average loans outstanding in February 2009 (month prior to first funding) were $139.2 million and in December 2009 were $158.2 million, an increase of $19.0 million.

What actions were you able to avoid because of the capital infusion of CPP funds?

A large, empty rectangular box with a thin black border, intended for a response to the question above. The box is currently blank and occupies most of the page below the question.

What actions were you able to take that you may not have taken without the capital infusion of CPP funds?

The Bank was able to leverage the $3.0 million of CPP funds received on February 27, 2009 to increase average deposits from $210.3 million in February 2009 to $242.1 in December 2009, an increase of $31.8 million. Those deposits were deployed by increasing average loans within the Bank's local targeted market area by $19.0 million and increasing average securities by $24.8 by December 2009. The additional $3.5 million of CPP funds received on December 22, 2009 will be further leveraged in 2010 using the same strategy.

Please describe any other actions that you were able to undertake with the capital infusion of CPP funds.
